President Harrison Vetoes a Public Building Bill.

SAN JOSE POSTOFFICE ASSURED.

The Last Public Reception—Republican Caucus—Congressional Matters.

(SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE RECORD-UNION.)

A VETO.

The President Refuses to Approve a Postoffice Bill.

WASHINGTON, April 29th.—President Harrison has vetoed the House bill authorizing the construction of an addition to the public building at Dallas, Tex., at a cost of $100,000. The bill as originally introduced, was fixed at $100,000 as to limit of expense, and the President cites a letter from the Supervising Architect of the Treasury that an extension of ample dimensions could be erected at a cost of $120,000, and was only vetoed last year. The President says, in part: "I am not unfriendly to a liberal appropriation for the erection of public buildings where safety and economy in the transaction of public business demands it, and the State of Texas is entitled to a postoffice building, but in view of the pending legislation looking to a very large reduction in our revenues, and the necessity of providing for a large increase in our expenditures in certain directions, I am of the opinion that appropriations for the erection of public buildings and all kindred expenditures should be kept at a minimum until the effect of other public legislation is ascertained. The erection of public buildings is a matter of local necessity and convenience, while the expenditures for enlarged relief and recognition of soldiers and sailors of the war, for necessary coast defenses and for the extension of our commerce with other American States are of national necessity, and involve consideration of the welfare of justice, honor, safety and general prosperity."

REPUBLICAN CAUCUS.

They Discuss Various Measures Now Before Congress.

WASHINGTON, April 29th.—The Republican caucus tonight considered the McCombs bill, commonly known as the "McCombs bill," and the Morrill service pension bill. The McCombs bill, which was introduced by Senator McCombs of California, and referred to the action of the Senate and Ohio Legislature, and then the States resort to national effecting of the subject. ## IRRIGATION SURVEYS.

First Annual Report of Director Powell of the Geological Survey.

WASHINGTON, April 29th.—Major Powell, Director of the Geological Survey, has submitted his first annual report on the subject of irrigation. He says that the area of the arid land region is 1,360,000 square miles. One third of the entire country is arid, or at least 150,000 square miles can be economically reclaimed by irrigation, making it worth not less than $9 per acre, adding $2,800,000,000 to the nation's wealth. He estimates the expenditure of the Government, estimated by Congress in 1888, and a portion of the $20,000,000 appropriated in 1890. The money was spent in a comprehensive investigation of the possibilities of irrigable land, and of the best methods of reclaiming it for homesteading, etc.

Washington Notes.

WASHINGTON, April 29th.—A delegation of twenty young colored men, representing the American people, with T. L. Thornton, of New York, as spokesman, were on their way to-day and passed the appointment of Edward P. McCabe, of Oklahoma, as Secretary of that Territory. Governor introduced in the House a bill authorizing the Interstate Act, which forbids common carriers to transport oils, in tank cars at a lower rate than they are charged for barrels or in carload lots. Sherman introduced a similar bill in the Senate.
